

CANNOT DRAW CASH

State University Regents Have Struck a Snag.

AUDITOR RICHARD'S VELO

REGENTS NOT ENTITLED TO THE $50,000.

Says They Must Expend the Money Before They Can Draw the Warrants—Does Not Propose to Transfer Cash From One Bank to Another.

A cloud that is now not much bigger than a man's head is rising over the historic dome, headquarters of the board of university regents. This cloud, like so many others that arise to darken the bright prospects of humanity in general, is a financial one. Auditor Richards is responsible for it, and he defends his position with much ability.

Yesterday Mr. Richards received a note from Secretary Allen of the board of regents in which was a copy of a resolution passed by the board at a meeting held Aug. 16. The resolution instructed Treasurer L. S. Hills to request the auditor to draw five warrants, payable to the board, for $10,000 each, or $50,000 in all.

The resolution stated that the money was or would be needed to meet expenses attendant on building the new university. As no vouchers were enclosed, Auditor Richards balked. He said he didn't see where he had the authority to issue warrants for cash that had not been already expended. He believed the law did not authorize him to transfer so large a sum, or any sum whatever from the state treasury to the university treasury, or to put it more plainly, from the Utah National bank to the University National bank, without some kind of vouchers.

In looking up the law, Mr. Richards found that the act under which the legislature appropriated $50,000 for the new university buildings, provided that the board might draw not to exceed $50,000 Jan. 1, 1901, and $50,000 before Jan. 1, 1901, at such times and in such amounts as might be proper.

This law was passed Feb. 24. On going further, however, Mr. Richards discovered that on March 9 the legislature passed another law, providing that on the first of each month, or as soon thereafter as possible, all accounts for state institutions should be presented to the auditor for payment, and requiring him to issue warrants on request when properly endorsed.

This is the law the auditor will stand on, unless he should receive an adverse reply to a question he is now formulating for presentation to the attorney general. He says he has nothing to show that a check of work has been done in the new university. Until he does this officially, he cannot draw. He has begun, constraining the law as he does now, he will keep that $50,000 in the Utah National bank and away from Mr. Hills' hands.

Neither will he pay out so much as $50,000 to the board of regents without some evidence to show that the money has been received for it. "The state might as well use the money as the board of regents," Mr. Hills' reply to the auditor was, "and unless the auditor will pay it, I shall hold on to it otherwise, I shall hold on to it."

CROWDS FLOCKING IN

Two Thousand Visitors Reached the City Last Night.

MANY THOUSAND TODAY

HOTELS WERE FULL AND PEOPLE TURNED AWAY.

Oregon Short Line Brought In Fifteen Hundred Last Night—Streets Were Crowded During the Evening—People From Every Point in the State.

The crowds which have come in from all over the state, from Denver, Butte and surrounding cities, have swamped the hotels. Some of them refused to receive guests during the day, and others received them only for last night.

Never before, perhaps, has such a mass of humanity poured into Salt Lake. People have come from every direction. "You may have a room tonight," said the clerk at the Kenyon to two ladies, "but you must give it up by 8 o'clock tomorrow morning." They took the room, for they were tired and weary of traveling.

The Walker and the Cullen refused early during the day to receive more guests. Though there were many names on the registers, they were not named or written for rooms some days in advance. Strangers were told that every room was taken. The White House had a few rooms left, and they are being held for old patrons of the place.

There is a jam and turmoil at the Kenyon, and it is expected that twenty persons will occupy them. Sample rooms of the drummer have been converted into bedrooms. All through the halls and in many nooks and corners sample tables have been placed. At the Knutsford there was still room, but not very much of it. No one had been turned away.

Last Night's Arrivals.
It may readily be understood how crowded the hotels are when it is realized that the Oregon Short Line alone brought in fifteen hundred last night, and from southern points last evening. How many the Rio Grande brought in is unknown, but the number will undoubtedly reach 500 or 600, and this but the vanguard of the crowd.

Crowds that thronged about the streets last night blocked every crossing and sidewalk about Second South and Main streets. Thousands paraded up and down Main street during the evening, and persons stood in droves to watch it.

To these country people this occasion is one long to be remembered. It will shine forth in future years as the commencement of an epoch in their lives. They have brought their wives and wives' sisters, their cousins and the babies with them. Country merchants have come to buy goods, as well as to see the great sight of the return of the volunteers. That accounts for the fact that the commercial houses of the city are crowded with the hotels. They expect to do as much business as they would on several trips about the state.

Thousands Coming.
But the crowd has hardly started to come yet, if information from the railroad is correct. Thousands and thousands will pour in upon those now here, until during this afternoon Main street will look like a section of Broadway, with crowds replacing the smartness of New York.

No one seems to know what is to become of them, where they will sleep tonight. Every hotel will undoubtedly be crowded by the afternoon, and no more guests can be received. Most of the private hotels and boarding houses are already full. Yesterday at least six persons went to the Walker House. Other places have been hunting rooms in lodging and boarding houses, and places to stay, but they have failed to give notice of their coming.

Mr. Bingham states that it is surprising the number of people that is going into that section every day. The country, which is enjoying an era of prosperity, is rapidly filling up with capitalists, miners, ranchers and stockmen. The Charter Oak and Rudefaha copper mines are shipping large quantities of ore, and a number of other mines are shipping small quantities, while numerous properties are getting ready to ship.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. TUTTLE

HEARD AND SEEN IN TIMMONY'S COURT

WELL KNOWN LADY SUCCUMBS TO OPERATION.

Wife of Bishop Tuttle and Resided in This City For Many Years—Died at St. Louis.

George J. Wallace last evening received a telegram from St. Louis, containing the sad announcement that Mrs. Tuttle, the wife of Bishop Tuttle, formerly of this Episcopal diocese, died at that city yesterday. While the telegram did not so state, it is believed by Mr. Wallace that her death resulted from a surgical operation, as it is known that an operation was to have been performed yesterday.

The news of Mrs. Tuttle's death will cause profound sorrow to the fact that she was through her long residence here had endeavored herself to hosts of friends. She came to Utah with Bishop Tuttle in 1886 and lived in this city until 1887. She was a native of New York state.

GOT CAPTAIN'S TRAVEL PAY.

Unpleasant Action of Pay Department to Major Grant.

(San Francisco Chronicle.)
The only unpleasant feature of the muster out was the treatment of Major Grant by the pay department of the army. He was told that the orders were to pay him only a captain's travel pay from here to Salt Lake, as the paymaster general had decided that as he commanded only two batteries he could not draw the travel pay of a major.

Major Grant was very angry, and he said that the paymaster general had decided that as he commanded only two batteries he could not draw the travel pay of a major. He said that the paymaster general had decided that as he commanded only two batteries he could not draw the travel pay of a major.

Judge Timmony Thought His Employer Was to Blame.

Reinhard Jacobson, the junk man who was, on Wednesday, found guilty of receiving stolen goods, was yesterday given a fine of $10. Judge Timmony said that the employer was to blame for the fine would have been much greater were it not for the fact that Jacobson is a poor man with a large family, and that his job depended upon his buying and selling junk.

NEWS FROM OVER THE STATE.

KILLED BY ACCIDENT

Tragic Death of E. A. Davis of Tooele County.

SHOT IN WEBER CANYON

WITH HIS OWN RIFLE HE KILLED HIMSELF.

Was Out Hunting and In Drawing Out a Shotgun From a Wagon He Exploded a Rifle—Ball Went Through Body From Abdomen to Shoulder.

(Special Correspondence.)
Park City, Aug. 18.—Last Friday E. A. Davis, a miner of West Dip, Tooele county, in company with his brother-in-law, Alfred Nardquist, had about 15 years ago, started out on a hunting expedition for big game, and in time drifted into this county. About 5 o'clock Wednesday morning, while driving down Weber canyon, a hawk flying over the wagon, and for something better to do, Davis said he would take a shot at it, and reached for the shotgun which was in the bottom of the rig, as was also a loaded rifle. In pulling the shotgun toward him it in some manner caught the hammer of the rifle, discharging the latter. The ball passed through the abdomen, and went under the left shoulder blade.

The wounded man lay from the wagon exclaiming: "My God, I'm killed," and sank to the earth. He was found by the wife of Nardquist, but fortunately two men happened along the other side of the river and were called upon for assistance. Davis was carried to a vacant log cabin about half a mile from where the accident occurred, and where he lay until medical assistance and alone with his heart-broken brother-in-law, lingered until 10 o'clock in the morning, when he breathed his last.

In due time Joseph Phillips, justice of the peace, arrived on the scene and held an inquest over the remains, the verdict being accidental death. The body was taken to Oakley, where it was placed in a box and shipped to Park City, arriving here Thursday afternoon.

The home yesterday afternoon, and relatives and yesterday Mr. Nardquist arrived in the Park and accompanied the body home. Mr. Davis is spoken of as a sober, industrious man, and his tragic death is a crushing blow to his young wife and his many friends. He was 38 years of age, and leaves a wife and two children. His maiden name was Miss Dennis.

WALTHALL'S MOTHER ARRIVES

STRICKEN WITH GRIEF BY HER SON'S DEATH.

Rebored the Young Man in the Right Way, But He Died a Drunkard—Coroner's Inquest.

The grief-stricken mother of young Marshall D. Walthall, who was on Thursday found dead in a cell of the city jail, arrived at this city last night. In company with her niece, Mrs. Owens of Colorado Springs, she went direct from the Rio Grande Western depot to the Knutsford Hotel. She was too agitated to see her son's remains last night, and so decided to have as yet no view of his body. It is probable, however, that they will be shipped to Middletown, N. Y., and placed in the family burial ground.

Mrs. Walthall is an elderly lady, and her silver hair and white, careworn face bespeak only too well the grief she feels over her son's untimely death. In her younger days, she had refused the hand of a man because she feared he might become a drunkard. Her husband died when Marshall was but a mere boy, and all through his youth and early manhood, it has been her constant care to rear him right. But now, after all these years, the caprice of fate has brought her son to a drunkard's death. The case is altogether a very pitiful one.

The inquest over the remains of young Walthall was conducted by Justice McDaniel at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, with a jury composed of S. P. Nove, Louis Hook and E. A. Kessler.

Official fingerprints first related the circumstances surrounding the young man's arrest, and Jailer Sol Kimball stated that he knew practically nothing of the circumstances, as he did not know him until after his death. During dinner time he heard some groans, but paid no attention to them, as such noises are of common occurrence among the prisoners.

At Knox Bode, a clerk in the local office of the Rio Grande Western said that he had known young Walthall for some time in New York and that he had always borne a good reputation.

John Smith and John Gorth, the two prisoners who were with Walthall when he died, related the circumstances as reported in yesterday morning's Herald.

The jury returned a verdict of death by natural causes, that the cause of alcohol had caused fatty degeneration of the heart. The police officers were exonerated from any blame in the matter.
